From Your Editor...

Will Mumford

Vernon Taylor was the first editor of your MD TAMS Journal, which was first published in the Fall of 1979. Vernon established the standard and the format still being used. Vernon edited 15 issues. Following his untimely death, Jane and Russ Sears assumed the responsibilities for editing the Journal. Together they edited the next nine issues. Jane then became the sole editor as nine issues was enough for Russ, as he had numerous other responsibilities, which included a demanding job and a tour as president of MD TAMS. Jane continued as editor for the next seven issues. I was then talked into becoming your editor.

My first issue was whole # 32, published in the Summer of 1987, which means that with this issue I have now been your editor for 63 issues of the MD TAMS JOURNAL. This translates to just one issue shy of 16 years.

I have enjoyed the process, although I must admit it does take quite a bit of time. After my retirement in 1995, I thought I would have loads of time to do all the neat things I had been saving up, but alas it was not to be! In my first year of retirement I was diagnosed with colon cancer and after surgery was told the cancer had metastasized to my lymph nodes. The doctors were not optimistic and I underwent a full year of chemotherapy.

At the end of this difficult year I was told that the cancer had spread to my liver. I had two tumors in my liver and I again faced surgery. Half my liver was removed but on the positive side I didn't have to face anymore treatments after my surgery. There was nothing more the doctors could do. I had monthly checkups and still have checkups every six months, but it has now been over five years since my last surgery. They tell me this is a time for celebration and certainly I am very thankful for still being around. Throughout all this I still found time to edit the Journal and I enjoyed doing it. The Journal was one of the few contacts I had with life and as long as I remained your editor I held on to some continuity of life.

But now arthritis is attacking my bones. My left hip is now fused and I can only walk with the support of a cane, even then there is pain. On December 17 I am going to undergo a complete hip replacement and they tell me that within a month I'll be walking again almost normal with no pain. Hopefully, I'll be able to attend more MD TAMS meetings and get back in circulation with my numismatic community.

I have remained active though. I still give programs to various groups and have been the moderator for the St. John's History Lecture series. I even gave the first lecture on "When Annapolis was an Army Town; Annapolis during the Civil War." It was a joy to do but I could feel I was lacking the usual energy I seem able to project during a lecture...since my hip has been acting up I have been unable to walk or exercise as I used to and have suffered a loss of energy. I also teach a course on Anne Arundel history to two Senior Centers, which has been a difficult joy.

It sure isn't much fun getting old. But with all my activities, my retirement years have allowed me to do a lot of things that I could never get done while I was working. So, in an unusual sense, these years have been the richest years of my life and I have enjoyed them so very much. With two books now published, more are in the mill. I might add that since my book on pickers' checks, we have discovered over 100 new tokens and about 20 new farmers. Look for an update in the future.

Through the thick and thin, it has been a pleasure to serve as your editor and I look forward to a few more years as my health permits. Being your editor has enriched my golden years and they say that if one keeps busy you don't let your advancing years, with all its problems, bother you. As a matter of fact, I think activity keeps you young, even as your body grows old. So, thank you, MD TAMSers, for giving me the opportunity to be your editor...Merry Christmas to all and to all a Happy New Year!

MD Tams Meeting

Ed Craig brought the meeting to order at 11:00AM on November 9, 2002 at the Baltimore Coin and Currency Convention.

Maryland TAMS is one of the three co-hosting clubs for the American Numismatic Association Convention that will be held July 30 – August 3, 2003 at the Baltimore Convention Center. Baltimore Coin Club and Maryland State Numismatic Association are the other hosting clubs.

There was a discussion to make a token to commemorate this event.

The Robert H. Roy Medal

Robert H. Roy was a gentleman who played a part in the educational and technical part of the history of the City of Baltimore. He grew up in the Baltimore area and attended Baltimore Polytechnic Institute. While in high school, he distinguished himself in the classroom, student government and on the football and lacrosse squads. His education continued at Johns Hopkins University where he earned a bachelors degree in mechanical engineering in 1928 and also participated as a member of the U.S. Olympic Lacrosse Team directed by then Major General Douglas MacArthur.

Robert H. Roy began working with Waverly Press, a local Baltimore printing establishment. Developing procedures leading to increased productivity and time saving in printing, typesetting and book design earned him the title of Vice-President of Engineering. In 1945, he became a labor arbitrator for the American Arbitration Association and began to teach at Hopkins. In 1947, he was appointed Associate Professor of Industrial Engineering and later Full Time Professor. Professor Roy worked to become Chair of the School of Engineering, Department of Industrial Engineering. Robert Roy continually stressed operations research and systems engineering.

In 1949, he became Assistant Dean and in 1953 he became the third Dean of the School of Engineering. As dean, he promoted advance teaching and research. In 1966, Dean Roy became President of the American Society for Engineering Education. Dean Roy was the recipient of the Frank and Lillian Gilbreth Industrial Engineering Award, the highest honor given by the Institute of Industrial Engineers. He was also listed in the Who's Who in America Series. Upon retirement, Dean Roy published another book on Operations Technology. Dean Roy continued to stress that one should not follow "convention" but incorporate "imagination" with "training" to be "different".

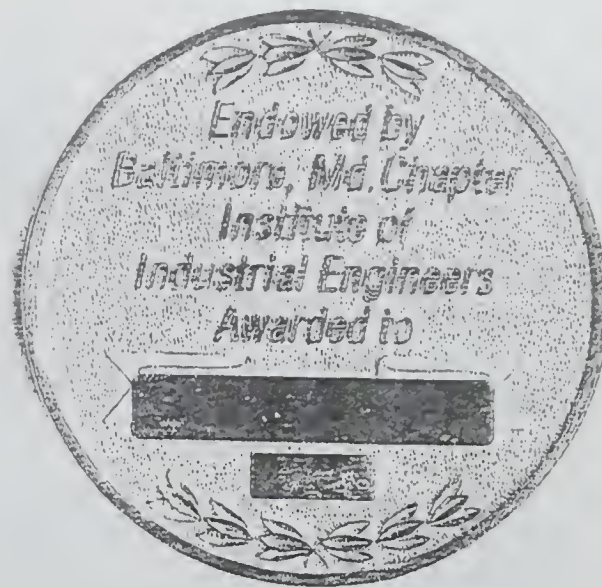

On behalf of his achievements the Baltimore Chapter of the Institute Of Industrial Engineers set up an endowment at Polytechnic. The endowment consists of a cash award and the presentation of a three-inch diameter brass medal. The initial design for the metal was reproduced from a photograph using a computer scanning procedure. The basic design was transferred to a working surface that was detailed by sculptor Roger Brown. Upon completion of the die work, J. Jenkins and Sons Company, Incorporated then struck the piece into its final form. The medal was then presented to the recipient with his name inscribed on the back on the night of the Senior Awards Diner. The award will be presented each year that there is a worthy recipient. The recipient's name will also be inscribed and mounted on a plaque that will be mounted in the hall of honor in the school.

Therefore, Robert H. Roy will be remembered by his colleagues from the past and students in the future and a one of a kind medal will now become part of the metallic fabric relating to the developments in Baltimore's educational and technological history.

“Baltimore Hours” Local Currency

Millard W. Hajek

This is a follow-up to Richard Kaminski's article “New Try For An Old Concept” which appeared in the Summer 2002 issue of our MARYLAND TAMS JOURNAL. It should be noted that some information from that article may be repeated here for clarity.

“Baltimore Hours” local currency is primarily intended but not limited to use in the Charles Village and Waverly areas of Baltimore City. As Mr Kaminski's article title indicates it is a “New Try at An Old Concept”. Currently, there are local currency programs operating in about 30 U.S. cities. This modern movement was started by Paul G. Glover in the early nineties. He started a program called Ithaca Hours which has served as a model for other similar programs around the world.

Local currency is legal tender if its use is restricted to the state in which it was issued, it is printed so that it doesn't look like U.S. currency, and it is convertible to dollars so people can calculate Local, State and Federal taxes.

Local communities issue scrip primarily to promote local businesses or resources or raise money for school projects. There is a difference between local scrip and barter. Barter implies a one-time transaction between two people with goods and services changing hands. Local currency stores value and can be used by a third party, a fourth party and so on. The scrip is used by local businesses or individuals who agree to use it for part or full payment. In the case of “hours” and federally issued currency is its financial backing. In the case of “Baltimore Hours”, the backing is in the form of real people, real skill and real services while U.S. currency is backed by less than nothing.

The “Baltimore Hours” Directory of Classified listings includes services for Accounting, Arts & Craft work, Bike & Auto Services, House Maintenance, Child Care, Computer Services, Consulting, Counseling, Desktop Publishing, Food Services, Editing & Writing, Yard Work, Tutoring, Legal Services, Pet Care, Photography, Sewing, Typing, just to name some of the categories. These goods and services are available in exchange for “Baltimore Hours”.

The following illustrations are examples of “Baltimore Hours” local currency. Each Hour is valued at $10 which is considered a living wage in our area. “Baltimore Hours” come in four denominations representing 1 hour, ½ hour, 1/4 hour and 1/10 hour. Each piece of scrip measures 2 3/4" X 5 3/4". All four pieces have a common face (front) which depicts the Baltimore Inner Harbor viewed from Federal Hill and copied from an 1850 painting. Photographs courtesy of the Enoch Pratt Library.

Illustrated above is the common face while the back is shown below. The One Hour note is a very pale dull pink color. The back shows the Baltimore & Ohio train "The Atlantic" which had a service life of 60 years altogether.

GREENLAND BEACH TOKEN

BY W. Wallace Stone.....R- 47

One of my Maryland tokens that has been in my collection for a number of years is one from the Northern Anne Arundel County area of Pasadena. It is the token of a Mr. A. Reinhardt of Greenland Beach and has been catalogued and attributed by David E. Schenkman in his book, Maryland Merchant Tokens. It is listed as Greenland Beach # 360- R 5 ,Brass and 20 MM in size, obverse and reverse are the same. There is no other information listed.

The area of Northern Pasadena that borders on the Patapsco River is one in which a dramatic change over from an agricultural to a residential emphasis took place between the mid-1890's and 1950's. Greenland Beach is one of about 10 or more "Beaches" that dot either side of Stony Creek. Many of these were early developments by real estate firms, mostly offering very small parcels of land for not very much money, many lots measured a mere 25 feet wide by 100 feet in length. A buyer would more than likely have to buy 3 or 4 lots in order to build a house, although not always. Some early owners used this as a weekend or summer escape from Baltimore and were content to have tents set upon a wood or cement foundation.

A new book was published in 2001, by Isabel Shipley Cunningham, "The Pasadena Peninsula". It traces the history of Pasadena and the area between the Magothy and Patapsco Rivers. There is a listing in the book of about 10 or more businesses that were new to this area in 1931. Mr. A. Reinhardt was listed as a grocery store and limited home hardware items were also sold at his store. A few years later he changed the business to a tavern.

In searching to find out something more about Greenland Beach and the Reinhardt token a visit to the Anne Arundel County land records office produced a nicely detailed plat of the proposed development of Greenland Beach by the Baltimore firm of Tubman and Mace located at 11 East Lexington St. room 404, Baltimore, Md. This was dated May 1922. This plat had plans for 208 individual lots with over half this number being waterfront. The entire section is not much larger than a thousand feet in length and four hundred and fifty feet in width in the rough shape of a triangle, ending at what is now called Fort Smallwood Road, at the Stony Creek Bridge.

With the plat in hand the next step would be to travel to the area and see if anything could be found that would help in my quest. I arrived in the neighborhood with the old plat and found that today, 80 years later, the street names and layout were as shown on the original plat. The one exception being Fort Smallwood Road was then called "County Road". On the corner of Greenland Beach Road, is a small one story building housing the Loyal Order Of Moose Supreme Lodge # 2389. The building looked old in design, and at some time in the past had been enlarged without regard to any artistic plan .

The Anne Arundel County Board of Liquor License Commissioners located in Annapolis were able to obtain for me their records relating to the Greenland Beach Tavern and Mr. Arthur Reinhardt Sr. The earliest record in their archives was dated April 14th, 1936 and showed the tavern as having a class B licence. Reinhardt's Store was licensed to sell alcohol at that time. The Liquor Board has records for the annual renewal of the liquor licence from 1936 through 1956 and showed the address as 8032 Fort Smallwood Road. This is the same as the Moose Lodge of today. After 1956 I could find nothing until 1996, when a new licence was granted for this location. The fact that it is a new licence and not a renewal, makes me think for some reason it lapsed. It may have been revoked or the licensee just failed to renew it. The licence was transferred to the Moose Lodge in May of 2000.

Having found the building and supporting evidence from the Liquor Board I felt satisfied that I had located the Reinhardt store and tavern of Greenland Beach.

I would like to thank Mr Carl P. Deyhle of the Anne Arundel County Land Record Office for help in obtaining the plats of the area of Greenland Beach as well as the other beaches on Stony Creek. Also the help of Mr. Thomas C. Eckert of the Board of License Commissioners for Anne Arundel County for his help in the archives dating back many years.

 Weldings Creek was changed to Back Cove.

Original plat of 1922 showing lots 125 to 127 as the approximate location of Reinhardt's store in 1931 as well as the home of the Moose Lodge in 2002.

The year 1936 ledger from the Board of Liquor License Commissioners of Anne Arundel County shows a renewal being issued to Mr Reinhardt and the Greenland Beach Tavern for a class “B” type license. Records indicate that two years later the Liquor Board considered this neighborhood to be in the Third District, all other information remained unchanged.

This June 2002 photograph of Moose Lodge # 2389 located at 8032 Fort Smallwood Road was the earlier home of the Greenland Beach Tavern and store owned by Arthur Reinhardt Sr. from 1931 until some time after 1956. A portion of Back Cove, a tributary of Stony Creek may be seen in the background of the building, however a water view is not a feature of the building.
